Do you need to be on campus every day? I was able to just buy $7 daily passes coming to campus for 3 days a week.

I can't remember what the quarterly cost was exactly, but I think it was $350+. For me it made sense and it might for you too because $$7 \times 3 \text{ days a week} = $21 \text{ per week} \times 10 \text{ weeks} = \sim \210 per quarter, which was for sure cheaper than the permit price. Even if you had to go a few extra days for finals or extra curriculars like I did you'd be good. This is the daily parking permit website I used:

Yes, purchase every day that you come to campus. I would set a reminder with my wake up alarm so I would remember to do it as soon as I woke up. If you wait too late in the day all of the on-campus lots will sell out so you'd have to park in Lot 32 in Westwood and walk farther.

Also, no problem I wish I had someone to tell me this when I was trying to figure it out last year!!!

You have to go to add/ edit parking application and just rank the structures!

and that's it? that's the application?

I called and they said thats it! Ive also never done it before but they sent an email confirmation and said you'll get an update September 2nd I think. If you are filing for special permits Im not sure if you have to do it through that link instead but as a commuter I don't think thats necessary.

whats a special permit? also were there only 4 parking choices for you too?

omg the parking situation at ucla is so confusing so i totally get it. basically you have to apply for a permit for the quarter through the bruin epermit portal online. it's kinda like a lottery system and not everyone gets one. you'll see a window of time when the application is open and you have to do it then. when you apply you rank all the parking structures in order of your preference, and my advice is to rank all of them to increase your chances. if you only come to campus a couple days a week, it how do you add more structures to your application? It only shows 4 and they are already all ranked for me
