

r/ucla X

Search in r/ucla

Create

1 r/ucla · 4y ago

Dev_NT

...

What's your favorite and least favorite part about UCLA as a student? (Could be literally anything)

From a curious UF student who might move to the west coast 🐼🌴

49

44

Join the conversation

Sort by: Best ▾

Search Comments

Ohwowgreat · 4y ago

fav: the people here are pretty great imo. the people i've met so far are kind and really driven. Makes me inspired to push forward.

love the campus

least: enrolling in classes

103

Reply

...

DesperateAttention40 · 4y ago

I've kinda had the opposite experience. I've only met maybe 10 good people here, the rest seemed super entitled, rude, and willing to destroy your career for the sake of their own lol. I can't even trust my own lab partners most of the time. Of course not everyone is this way, but the competition amongst peers (particularly in STEM) is extremely fierce.

7

Reply

...

nyonblue · 4y ago

One time, someone told me, "hey, when you get to this question on the chem exam, pick the answer that says ____" we were friends so when i got that question i did what she said wo thinking (big mistake). she ended up getting 100 and i got that one question wrong and nothing else. she said oh whoops i told u the wrong thing my bad. never gonna make the mistake of trusting a "friend" from class ever again lol. rly rude awakening freshman year, luckily ive avoided these sorts of situations since. me myself and i at this school.

9

Reply

...

DesperateAttention40 · 4y ago

r/ucla X

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

had missed the last lecture before the final because I was sick and it wasn't recorded.) I believed her. Over 50% of the final's material was on that one topic I was told not to study.

7

Reply

nyonblue • 4y ago

Ah I'm so sorry that happened to you too!

3

Reply

[deleted] • 4y ago

Comment deleted by user

Reply

Share

Ohwowgreat • 4y ago

you're absolutely right. Most of my friends I've met outside of the classroom and we're all stem majors.

2

Reply

Only_Ad_5805 • 4y ago

Same

1

Reply

ProfessionNo4021 • 1y ago

What test do you do

1

Reply

[deleted] • 4y ago

Comment deleted by user

Reply

Share

Ohwowgreat • 4y ago

oh damn... sorry you've had a bad experience. I guess it varies for everyone.

30

Reply

ash-hart • 4y ago

favorite thing: ucla

least favorite thing: ucla

144

Reply

r/ucla X

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

favorite thing: getting to put ucla on your resume least favorite thing: everything else

114

Reply

nyonblue • 4y ago

3rd year psychobio major here

favorite: i can say that i went to ucla, nice campus, good amt of activities/clubs, mostly good weather.
least: we are j a number at this school, the academic counseling dpt is for sure not as intergrated in students lives as they were at my sisters state school, a good good handful of the professors are j not as quality as i wouldve hoped, LA feels like a daily hassle to me incl. cost of living, the food i can afford is eh, etc, absolutely not worth tuition unless youre getting money off.

i wish i could say i love ucla but i j dont, im from the east too, i kinda regret choosing here as my school but also i know ppl who love it here. so take my opinion w a grain of salt. but forewarning, westerners have a very different attitude/personality than east coasters so beware. ive got friends but none that really speak to my real personality like how they did in the places ive lived before in the east. for some reason, i gravitate towards making out of state friends which is interesting actually, almost all of my friends are out of staters. BUT, its not good or bad culture shock necessarily (it all depends on you) but if u have a preference than it can be something that sorta make or breaks the experience, like it has for me. i dont wanna sugar coat for you because i wouldnt have done that for my past self either. its a good school but be extra sure to visit before hand and do some research because i didnt do this i feel somewhat that i made a bad decision.

like i said tho, i know lots of students who like it here and college is college, so theres certain aspects that are probably the same everywhere but idl since ive been here for my undergrad.

feel free to dm me if you have any questions tho!

37

Reply

[deleted] • 4y ago

Comment deleted by user

Reply

Share

EnvironmentalMud4870 • 4y ago

This is so interesting to me. What is it about Californians that you don't get along with? Is there a quality that is common amongst us that is inherently "unlikeable" or hard to gel with?

21

Reply

[deleted] • 4y ago

Comment deleted by user

r/ucla ×

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

Yes, this is exactly how I feel. It's not that people are horrible or rude or anything it's just something about having a real connection with people here. A lot of my friends feel surface level, I'm sure the feeling goes both ways. I like them but they just don't communicate, think, prioritize, joke, etc. like how me and my friends/people I met did in the East. So I just wanna make sure it's clear when I say I don't think Californians are bad people, there's just big cultural differences that make it hard to feel at home here, socially-speaking!! No one problem, just an overall feeling I have.

2

Reply

No-Highway-5187 • 4mo ago

lk it's been 3 years but I gotta say I think this is just college life/life after highschool. People are much more surface level, it's gonna be a lot more acquaintances and proly a lot less people that are LIKE you. Meaning you're less inclined to be friends with each other

1

Reply

nyonblue • 4mo ago • Edited 4mo ago

That could be true for some, but for my case, it truly was as simple as being an east coast v west coast thing for sure. I've been getting along much better in NYC. LA people just simply aren't my type at all. I was raised in a very diverse area and UCLA was not like that, it was a very homogenous personality even if it had lots of racial diversity.

I feel like what you gave is like the textbook answer for this, which is cool. But I think there is an undeniable difference between east coast and west coasters when you've lived in both places

2

Reply

Woman4Fielder • 4y ago

I'm curious about that too. I'm from the east coast and can't make a sweeping generalization about all Californians enough to say that I don't get along with most of them.

1

Reply

nyonblue • 4y ago

could be about where in the east we are from, im from eastside cleveland if that gives any insight into the kinda place i was raised but also read my reply to the other person above because it's not that i don't get along with all californians, it's just a general feeling i have. hopefully it'll clarify my original message.

1

Reply

r/ucla X

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

40

Reply

AppropriateLaw5713 · 4y ago

Favorite thing: it's location allows you to check out a lot of fun things on weekends. The weather is pretty consistent here (it gets colder in fall and winter like mid 50's). The campus is really nice to walk around and look at. Westwood is a novel little place. Our sports are pretty good.

Negatives: the school spirit here can really suck sometimes. Imposter syndrome is real and it effects A LOT of people here. There's a constant expectation upon you since you are at the #1 public university. The services are for the most part disorganized and really not easy to figure out. You'll either fit in at ucla or you won't. If you're not a stem major it can at times feel hard to connect with people. It's incredibly expensive for out of state students and yet feels outdated at almost every turn for one reason or another. Course load / intensity is no joke and you can feel overwhelmed easily. Etc

24

Reply

KWash0222 · 4y ago

Favorite: Options for activities. The campus is beautiful. There are endless things to do with it being relatively centrally located to the beach, downtown, WeHo. Lots of clubs, IMs, etc.

Least: the scale of everything. Big school in a big city = you are basically on your own trying to find opportunities to meet people, engage in extracurriculars, and even in succeeding academically. It's a very cold feeling knowing you could be alone on a Friday night while the entire campus is buzzing just because you haven't found the right crowd.

Added favorite: diversity of people.

Added least favorite: the fucking Rose Bowl being 20 miles away

22

Reply

college-throwaway87 · 4y ago

Omg what a coincidence! UF was one of my top choices. I might do grad school there if my career interests change.

Favorite: the comfortable, predictable weather

Least favorite: cost of living (here getting a single room in an apartment is well over $1000 whereas in UF it's like $400...)

15

Reply

Dev_NT OP · 4y ago

I hear that's very true, especially w grocery expenses. If you wanna hear anything about UF just

r/ucla X

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

Nesquick19 • 3y ago

How much do you pay in tuition every semester?

1

Reply

college-throwaway87 • 3y ago

Too much

1

Reply

Nesquick19 • 3y ago

What is the Rough estimate?

1

Reply

CollegeThrowaway1937 • 4y ago

Favorite thing: telling people I go to ucla

Least favorite thing: actually going to ucla. To say ucla is overrated is an understatement.

22

Reply

[deleted] • 4y ago

favorite thing: quarter system least favorite thing: quarter system

7

Reply

ThrowLA777 • 4y ago

to switch up some of the vibes here,,,,,

Fave thing:

honestly the people here cause they really really want to be here? maybe since everyone here is someone that uses Reddit you're getting a skewed view on how much they enjoy it (sorry) but in my irl life almost everyone i know, ESPECIALLY if they're involved in any extra curriculars, is at the end of the day really happy they're here no matter how much bullshit we're dealing with. people are full of drive and passion and it really is contagious.

also the food and the hill! and the clubs and activities offered!! weather is great and the campus is beautiful cons: tbh same cons as any public school. You have to jump through hoops to get things done on an admin end and enrollment is a nightmare because there are so many goddamn people at this school that yes, to some extent it can feel like you're just another face. the levels of bureaucracy that you

r/ucla X

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

you'd need we just also have like 30K+ students.

and not rly a con so much as just something to be aware of., things move FAST here. the quarter system does NOT drag. This can be a pro or a con depending on your demeanor but for me it's both for sure

6

Reply

BloodCheesecake · 4y ago

Relating to fitness stuff specifically, if thats your thing:

Favorite: The dining halls here (while often pretty packed) make it decently easy to follow a diet. There's a good amount of variety and the foods really good (especially if your reference is chomp it lol)

Least favorite: If you go to the gym often don't expect an easy time getting the equipment you need, even during off-hours

4

Reply

ApprehensiveHair3587 · 4y ago

Fave: I feel like I'm really being pushed academically every day and I think there's a lot of opportunities to get involved on campus and also I love the location and the campus itself Least fave: enrollment is a nightmare tbh and it's a huge campus, but that's not ucla specific I don't think

3

Reply

poopty_scoopy · 4y ago

Least favorite is for sure the nasty bathrooms. Half of them don't have seat covers in the stalls themselves, just a communal stack on the sink or whatever. How much does it cost to put a fricken tissue box in a stall. Billion dollar endowment my ass 🙄

3

Reply

[deleted] · 4y ago

honestly i love pretty much everything. the location- westwood is such a safe college town bubble! there's so much to do in the area and so many places to go. FOOD i love the food on the hill and in the surrounding LA area. the campus is gorgeous. academically, ucla is pretty competitive in every field if u dont rly know what u want to do. the beautiful weather, my noncore classes, the super cool clubs (everything from lettuce club to culture to birding to redistributing food to baking?) and the DIVERSITY. i actually love that it's such a big school bc there are so many ppl to meet. everyone i've met is so interesting?? like i met an olympian, a famous childhood youtuber, a lot of great musicians, talented dancers, rubric cube whizzes..

r/ucla ×

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

cons: i think the biggest thing is that you need to be pretty bubbly/outgoing to survive here. i think most people who aren't from socal have a hard time transitioning (including me!!) bc of that cultural difference. public transit's kinda ass, cost of just staying alive is high, core class stem teachers can be really really bad, enrollment is hard...

but honestly i just really really love being at this school even tho i struggled a lot transitioning. i dont think it's for everyone, but i still believe ucla is the best college in the whole wide world :')

3

Reply

NorCalBroccoliBoy · 4y ago

Favorite: Andre

Least favorite: the haters

2

Reply

htrobz · 4y ago

MSOL '22

Favorite: getting a degree

Least: putting in the work to get a degree

I'm about 2.5 weeks from graduating and I've never been to the UCLA campus (thanks MSOL for saving me gas money!). From my perspective studying and schooling comes first, and fun social stuff will fall in line eventually!

1

Reply

AngelsLoveDisasters · 4y ago

Favorite: there's fun things to do around here and convenient food places

Least favorite: parking is awful

1

Reply

FormalWrong604 · 4y ago

favorite: the diversity in classes, having so many options when you can actually enroll, having a 24 hour reading room at the library, professors are usually pretty chill and easy to approach least favorite: the hills, how commuters can't get meal plans, THE QUARTER SYSTEM

1

Reply

r/ucla ×

Search in r/ucla

Create

1

registration is horrendous, fact that it's in LA; driving and walking here is miserable, expensive. Very minor personal opinion, but UCLA has the worst school colors of any UC (again, this is my personal opinion because I hate light blue)

1

Reply

thenamecraig • 4y ago

Favorite thing: close to home

Least favorite thing: academics are ass

1

Reply

ry200 • 4y ago

fav thing: people

least fav thing: no off campus housing meal plan

1

Reply

Intrepid-Ad2358 • 4y ago

ooo how do you like UF I might have to transfer there cuz I'm out of state and this tuition is killing me

1

Reply

Only_Ad_5805 • 4y ago

For me it's mainly the people, I met really entitled people who think they're better than others because of their major or just doing a major for the money but at the same time I also met really encouraging and passionate people who enjoy what they're learning.

1

Reply

TobiOffice • 3y ago

Best part: the beautiful campus, food, gym. Worst part: the ucla campus culture. It feels pretty isolating and superficial. Not a lot of helpful resources for those of us looking for a community. Felt more like every student was on their own Island. The school fails to assertively provide an inclusive and welcoming campus culture. My two cents.

1

Reply

r/ucla ×

Search in r/ucla

Create

